A SONG OF THE SOUTH

WORDS BY
FRANK L. STANTON

MUSIC BY
C. B. HAWLEY

HIGH VOICE     S     LOW VOICE

THE JOHN CHURCH COMPANY
CINCINNATI    LEIPSIC   NEW YORK    CHICAGO   LONDON
A Song of the South.

FRANK L. STANTON.

C. B. HAWLEY.

Allegretto.

The wind is like a lover
To kiss the roses

mouth: To garden bright, He takes his flight

Copyright, MCMVII, by The John Church Company.
International Copyright.
Way down South... And heaven seems not so far away As all the idle dreamers say And winter wears the bloom of May Way down South.

How green the gracious meadows.

Way down South the valleys sing of Lesson - 6

—in deathless Spring way down South—Love binds his brow with violets blue, That glow with sunlight, drip with dew And rests him on the heart of you, Way down South.