When

first I gazed on you, my love,
I saw be-neath your wondrous hair
Such joy in your up-lift-ed face, It caught my and held it there. When first I held you in my arms And kissed your lowered brow divine, I knew that there could never be A sacred love as pure as thine.

When first your soul its depth revealed
And

home a deeper reverence knew, No sacrifice was ever too great, I would not make, my love, for you.

When
first mis fortune numbed my soul And sorrow dimmed life's golden hae, Your love gave strength un to my heart. I lived a.
