Table of Contents

Chapter 1 Introduction 1

Chapter 2 Kant’s Reciprocity Thesis 13
  2.1 Kant’s Leibnizian Influence 13
  2.2 Freedom ↔ Morality 21
    2.2.1 Morality→Freedom 21
    2.2.2 Freedom→Morality 25
  2.3 Allison’s Insufficient Attribution 32
  2.4 The Underpinnings of Kant’s Reciprocity Thesis 36
  2.5 Reciprocity as a ‘Dynamical’ Concept 42

Chapter 3 The Categorical Imperative and Universal Law 46
  3.1 Understanding the ‘Universal Law’ Formulation 46
  3.2 Questioning the Equivalence of Kant’s Three Formulations 55

Chapter 4 The Content of Kantian Moral Theory 64
  4.1 The Duty of Self-Knowledge 65
  4.2 The Kantian Notion of ‘Virtue’ 70
  4.3 The Two Moral Duties 80
  4.4 Respect for Humanity 85
  4.5 The Derivation of Particular Duties 88

Chapter 5 The Political Requirements of Morality 93
  5.1 Duties To Self 93
  5.2 Duties To Others 99
  5.3 The Pursuit of Moral Reciprocity 102

Chapter 6 Rights, Coercion, and the State 106
  6.1 The Principle of Human Interaction: Reciprocity 106
  6.2 The Kantian Justification of Coercion 114
  6.3 Civil Society and Moral Improvement 121

Chapter 7 Kantian Conditions of Civil Society 129
  7.1 Freedom and the Natural Law 129
  7.2 The Kantian Prohibition on State Violence 136
  7.3 A Patriotic Government 139
  7.4 Equality and the ‘Rightful Condition’ 144

Chapter 8 Conclusion 148
  8.1 The Kantian Constitution 148
  8.2 A Cosmopolitan Constitution 152
  8.3 The Critical and Pre-Critical Works Reconsidered 155

Bibliography 161
Table of Contents