music shall wait ______ from the towers, And perfumes their heaviness shed, Through the golden Assyrian hours, Where my fair - est shall dream on her bed. Dreams of love, dreams of bliss,

In the moon - light's soft kiss!

Dreams of love, dreams of bliss!

Far, far a - way, By night and day,
Far from war, O may I be Far from all save wine and thee!

Far, far away, By night and day,

accel.

Far from war, O may I be Far from all, far... from all save wine, save wine... and thee!
2. To gaze on thy wonderful beauty, To worship thy marvelous charms, Is to know but one sovereign duty, To clasp thee enwrapped in my arms. The thril of the warrior, The noise of the battle grows dim, A swift cours-ing pass-ion exceed - eth The rich tri-umphs of car-nage so grim. I seek for Be-thu-li-a's trea-sure. As prize for the master from me, But great-est of all is the plea-sure To have won thy sweet love from thee! Dreams of love, dreams of bliss,

In the moonlight's soft kiss!

Dreams of love, dreams of bliss!

Far, far away, By night and day.
Far from war, O may I be Far from all save wine and thee!

Far, far away,
By night and day,

Far from war, O may I be Far from all, far from all save wine, save wine and thee!
